Read Comments Carefully Before Filling InWhen and Where to File

17 You should file in the Northern District if you were convicted and sentenced in one of these 18 counties: Alameda, Contra Costa, Del Norte, Humboldt, Lake, Marin, Mendocino, Monterey, Napa, 19 San Benito, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, San Mateo and Sonoma. You should also file in 20 this district if you are challenging the manner in which your sentence is being executed, such as loss of 21 good time credits, and you are confined in one of these counties. Habeas L.R. 2254-3(a).

22 If you are challenging your conviction or sentence and you were not convicted and sentenced in 23 one of the above-named fifteen counties, your petition will likely be transferred to the United States 24 District Court for the district in which the state court that convicted and sentenced you is located. If 25 you are challenging the execution of your sentence and you are not in prison in one of these counties, 26 your petition will likely be transferred to the district court for the district that includes the institution 27 where you are confined. Habeas L.R. 2254-3(b).

1 Who to Name as Respondent

2 You must name the person in whose actual custody you are. This usually means the Warden or 3 jailor. Do not name the State of California, a city, a county or the superior court of the county in which 4 you are imprisoned or by whom you were convicted and sentenced. These are not proper 5 respondents.

6 If you are not presently in custody pursuant to the state judgment against which you seek relief 7 but may be subject to such custody in the future (e.g., detainers), you must name the person in whose 8 custody you are now and the Attorney General of the state in which the judgment you seek to attack 9 was entered.

10 A. INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR CONVICTION AND SENTENCE

25 B. GROUNDS FOR RELIEF

26 State briefly every reason that you believe you are being confined unlawfully. Give facts to 27 support each claim. For example, what legal right or privilege were you denied? What happened?
 28 Who made the error? Avoid legal arguments with numerous case citations. Attach extra paper if you

1 need more space. Answer the same questions for each claim.

2 [Note: You must present ALL your claims in your first federal habeas petition. Subsequent 3 petitions may be dismissed without review on the merits. 28 U.S.C. §§ 2244(b); McCleskey v. Zant, 8 PETITIONER'S CLAIM WITHOUT ANY EVIDENTIARY SUPPORT IN THE RECORD...

9 (see p. 10 of Brief in Support of Writ attached hereto)
10 Supporting Facts: On June 1, 2007, the State court denied Petitioner 11 relief, asserting that he had no due process liberty interest in 12 being paroled because the panel's decision was a preliminary decision.
13 (Exh. W at 6). Moreover, in spite of the record being replete with 14 evidence to the contrary, the State court further stated that 15 "significant portions of the hearing was unable to be transcribed."
16 (Id. at pp. 3-5).

17 THE STATE COURT'S ADJUDICATION RESULTED IN A DECISION THAT 18 Claim Two: WAS BASED ON AN UNREASONABLE DETERMINATION OF THE FACTS
19 IN LIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE PRESENTED IN THE STATE COURT PROCEEDING.
20 (Please see page 17 of Brief in Support of Writ attached hereto).

21 Supporting Facts: The State Court denied relief without requiring 22 Respondent to file a responsive return, after it had been determined 23 that Petitioner stated sufficient facts in both his original petition 24 (Exh. H) and his amended/supplemental petition (Exh. P) to establish 25 a prima facie case for relief. See Exh. W at p. 6.) Thus, depriving

STATEMENT OF JURISDICTION

The district court has jurisdiction to decide the petition for writ of habeas corpus filed by petitioner under 28 U.S.C. § 2254. By order filed Nov. 28, 2007, the California Supreme Court denied review. See Appendix 1. That judgment is a final order that disposes of all petitioner's claims.

QUESTIONS PRESENTED FOR REVIEW

1. Was Petitioner deprived due process of law when the State court concluded contrary to "clearly established" United States Supreme Court precedent that Petitioner has no liberty interest in parole and then denied Petitioner's claims without any evidentiary support in the record tending to establish the Board of Parole Hearings' (hereafter "BPH, Board or Respondent") allegation that the decision portion of the hearing could not be transcribed?

2. Did the State Court's adjudication result in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State Court proceeding?

3. Was Petitioner deprived of his Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment rights to due process when the Board disapproved and rescinded its September 24, 2004 finding that he was suitable for parole based solely on the fact that the Board lost the decision portion of the transcript from the hearing?

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Petitioner Fred L. Baker (hereafter "Petitioner") was convicted in Riverside County Superior Court of kidnap robbery, robbery, vehicle theft, attempted murder, grand theft, weapons use and weapons possession. He was sentenced on October 30, 1980, to seven years to life, consecutive to eight years plus three years in prison.

Petitioner's minimum eligible release date was set for July 31, 1994. On August 3, 1993, Petitioner appeared before the Board of Parole Hearings for his initial parole eligibility hearing. He was denied parole for one year. At a September 8, 1994, hearing, he was denied parole for another year. At a February 20, 1996, hearing, he was denied parole for two years. At a May 2, 1998, hearing, he was denied parole for one year.

1 At a May 1999, hearing, he was denied parole for two years. At 2 an October 24, 2001, hearing, he was denied parole for one year.
3 At an August 5, 2003, hearing, he was denied parole for one 4 year. Finally, at a September 24, 2004, hear, Petitioner was 5 found suitable for parole. (Exh. A.)

6 On September 28, 2004, Petitioner was summoned to the 7 counselors office to sign and receive the conditions of his 8 parole. (Exh. B.)

9 On November 30, 2004, after reviewing the transcript, the 10 Decision Review Unit alleged that due to an apparent malfunction
11 of the recording equipment, the decision portion of the hearing 12 could not be transcribed, and recommended disapproval of the 13 "proposed September 24, 2004 hearing decision and schedule a 14 rehearing on the next available calendar." (Exh. C.) However, 15 on page 85 of the transcript, the transcriber noted in her 16 declaration that she had "transcribed tape(s) which total one 17 in number and cover a total of pages 1 through 84." (Board 18 Transcript "BT".) She received no further tapes for transcript-
19 ion. (Exh. BT at p. 84.)

20 On December 14, 2004, the BPH^{1/}, sitting in en banc, adopted
21 the Decision Review Unit's recommendations in full and rescinded
22 the September 2004 suitability decision. (Exh. D.)

23 On January 27, Petitioner filed a petition of Writ of Habeas 24 Corpus in the Monterey Superior Court challenging the Board
25 of Parole Hearings' disapproval/rescission of its September 26 2004 finding that he was suitable for parole.

27 On March 25, 2005, the Court asked the Board for informal

28 1. Prior to July 1, 2005, the Board was known as the Board Prison Terms.

1 opposition to the habeas corpus petition. (Exhibit E.)

2 After receiving the Respondent's opposition,^{2/} the Court
 3 issued an order requiring Respondent to show cause why Petitioner 4 should not be granted the relief sought in his petition. The 5 order included the following statement of issues: "the Court 6 acknowledges the requirements of Penal Code § 3042 and its 7 applicability to Petitioner's claim. However, it is important 8 to note that it was Respondent, rather than Petitioner, who 9 failed to record the 'Decision' portion of the hearing as 10 required by Penal Code § 3042. The informal Response fails 11 to address this apparent inequity." (Order, filed Aug. 23, 12 2005; Exh. H.) Moreover, in so ruling, the superior court added 13 that "the most equitable solution would be to reschedule the 14 hearing before the same Board members with instructions to adopt 15 the existing transcript from the former hearing and recreate
 16 their Decision to recommend parole based on that transcript
 17 and their independent recollection." (Id. at p. 2.)

18 Respondent requested and was given an extension of time 19 to file his return. In the extension, Respondent informed the 20 superior court that a hearing had been rescheduled for October 21 4, 2005 in front of the same commissioners and "the outcome
 22 could render Petitioner's claims moot." (Exhibit I.) Respondent
 23 took advantage of the superior court's granting the extension
 24 by conducting a de novo hearing, which resulted in a recommendation
 25 against parole. (Exhibit X.)

26 On October 7, 2005, Respondent requested the superior court 27 to advise the parties if it was going to modify the order to

28 2. See Respondent's Informal Response (Exh. F) and Petitioner's Reply
 (Exh. G.)

1 show cause, namely, whether Respondent should still address
2 why Petitioner's hearing should not be heard by the same Board
3 members with instructions to issue a decision recommending
4 parole, and also indicating that no response to the request 5 for an extension to file had been received. (Exhibit W. at 6 p. 2.)

7 On October 24, 2005, the court issued an order denying 8 Respondent's request that the court modify its Order to Show
9 Cause, and ordered Respondent to file a return on or before 10 November 24, 2005. In response to Respondent's question the 11 court noted, to the extent to which the transcript from the 12 September 24, 2004, hearing was incomplete and the portions 13 of the hearing that were not recorded present evidentiary issues 14 that may be addressed in Respondent's Return. Moreover, given 15 the fact that the transcript contains approximately eighty pages
16 of testimony, the Court remains interested in Respondent's 17 position as to why a de novo hearing (one which appears to have 18 reached a different conclusion) was necessary to correct
19 Respondent's failure to properly record the September 24, 2004,
20 hearing. (Exhibit J.)

21 On November 28, 2005, Respondent filed a return, (Exh. K),
22 and on December 23, 2005, Petitioner filed a denial. (Exh. L.)
23 Subsequently, Petitioner filed a motion to amend the denial 24 and a request for judicial notice to include pages that were 25 inadvertently omitted (Exh. M) and Respondent filed an opposition 26 and objection.

27 On March 8, 2006 Petitioner filed a response to Respondent's 28

1 opposition to request for judicial notice and a response to 2 Respondent's objection. (Exhibit W.)

3 On June 5, 2006, the court issued an order following the 4 filing of the return and traverse. (Exhibit N.) In the order
 5 the court explained that Respondent's reliance on Sections 6 3041(b), 3041.1, and 3042(b)-(c) for the proposition that the 7 Board's action was proper, is in err. The sections cited by 8 Respondent merely provides a process for the review of a parole
 9 hearing decision. The court then added "no mandate is set 10 forth requiring a rehearing where, as here, the recording 11 equipment malfunctions or staff simply neglects to produce all 12 tapes for transcription." (Id. at p. 2.) After pointing out 13 that a "hearing record is sufficient for the purposes of review 14 whether it be made by transcript or written summary," the court 15 admonished that "Respondent failed to analyze or discuss the 16 relevant equities of the matter." (Ibid.) Further, the court 17 found that the petition contained pleading defects which must 18 be corrected, and granted Petitioner leave to amend or supple-
 19 ment his petition by addressing facts and theories relevant 20 to the Board's decision which were not expressly or implicitly 21 raised in the petition. (Id. at p. 5.)

22 On July 10, 2006, Petitioner filed an amended/supplemental 23 petition. (Exhibit O.)

24 On August 5, 2006, Respondent filed a request for 25 clarification and, if appropriate, the issuance of an order
 26 to show cause. (Exhibit W.)

1 On November 20, 2006, the court issued an order to show
 2 cause directing Respondent to show cause why Petitioner should 3 not be granted the relief sought in his amended/supplemental 4 petition. Moreover, the court once again placed Respondent 5 on notice of its failure to address the relevant equities of 6 the matter. (Exhibit P.)

7 Respondent was granted an extension of time to file a 8 supplemental return by January 8, 2007. (Exhibit Q.)

9 On December 29, 2006, the court on its own motion, granted
 10 Respondent an extension of time to file a supplemental return
 11 within 30 days of January 5, 2007. (Exhibit R.)

12 On January 8, 2007, Petitioner filed a "Motion to Grant
 13 Relief Requested in Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus." (Exh. S.)

14 On February 1, 2007,^{3/} the court denied Petitioner's "Motion 15 to Grant Relief requested in Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus."
 16 (Exhibit W at p. 3, lns 6-7.)

17 On February 7, 2007, Respondent filed a return to the 18 amended/supplemental petition. (Exhibit T.)

19 On March 14, 2007, Petitioner was granted an extension of 20 time to file a supplemental denial on or before March 30, 2007.
 21 (Exh. U.) On March 29, 2007 Petitioner filed a supplemental denial.

22 On April 24, 2007, the court, on its own motion, granted 23 itself an extension of time to issue an order to and including 24 June 1, 2007, because of "complexity of the issues raised."

25 (Exh. V.) On June 1, 2007, the petition was denied. (Exh. W.)

26 On September 12, 2007, the Sixth Appellate District Court
 27 of Appeal denied the petition (Exh. Z.) and the California 28 Supreme Court denied review on Nov. 28, 2007.

3. The Honorable Marla O. Anderson presided over this case from January 2005 until 2007, but was removed prior to rendering a final decision.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

2 In Greenholtz v. Inmates of Nebraska Penal & Corr. Complex, 3 442 U.S. 1, 7 (1979) and Board of Pardons v. Allen, 482 U.S.
4 369 (1987), the United States Supreme Court established in 1979 5 and reaffirmed in 1987 that "a state's statutory scheme, if 6 it uses mandatory language, creates a presumption that parole 7 release will be granted when or unless certain designated 8 findings are made, and thereby gives rise to a constitutional 9 liberty interest." Id. at 12; Allen, 482 U.S. 377.

10 In accordance with the United States Supreme Court's 11 decision in Greenholtz and Allen, the California Supreme Court
12 has indicated that California "prisoners possess a protected 13 liberty interest in connection with parole decisions rendered 14 by the Board." See In re Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal.4th 616, 661 (2002).

15 Here, not only did Petitioner demonstrate a liberty interest 16 in parole release, but also there were other fundamental core 17 due process issues being pursued on appeal: (a) whether the 18 Board's determination was arbitrary and capricious; (b) whether 19 the state court failed to follow the Supreme Court's instructions 20 in Allen holding that parole release will be granted unless 21 certain designated findings are made; and (c) whether the state 22 court failed to follow the Supreme Court's instructions in 23 Hill v. Superintendent, 472 U.S. 445 regarding that there must 24 be some evidence in the record to support the conclusion reached 25 by the board. Nevertheless, relief was denied in this case 26 even though the State Court determined that Petitioner was 27 not responsible for the parole hearing being transcribed (Exh.

1 W at p. 4) and that the apparent inequity was created by 2 Respondent's neglect to produce all tapes for transcription.
3 (Exh. N at p. 2.) Petitioner was clearly prejudice by 4 Respondent's failure because, if the Board had fulfilled its 5 duty of producing the record, it is reasonably probable, indeed 6 almost certain, that Petitioner would have received a full and 7 fair determination of his parole application in light of the 8 evidence presented to the granting panel. Thus, finalization 9 of the parole grant and his ultimate release from prison.

10 Moreover, while federal courts have established a long 11 standing practice of paying great deference to the views of 12 those courts who are familiar with the intricacies and trends
13 of local law (Bishop v. Wood, 426 U.S. 341, 246 n. 10 (1976)), 14 the Ninth Circuit warned that the state courts may not interpret 15 their law in such an arbitrary manner that the interpretation 16 is nothing but an evasion of the federal due process require-17 ments. See Peltier v. Wright, 15 F.3d 860, 862 (9th Cir. 1994).

18 The State's highest court explained "[t]o impose a 19 standard of review that is less stringent than the 'some 20 evidence' test ... would permit the Board to render a decision
21 without any basis in fact." See Rosenkrantz, supra, 29 Cal.4th 22 at p. 657. The Court admonished that "[s]uch a decision would 23 be arbitrary and capricious, thereby depriving the prisoner
24 of due process of law." Id. Accordingly, the state court's 25 interpretation of state and federal law to deny the petition
26 was untenable in light of the evidence and completely eviscerates
27 the federal "some evidence" standard. The writ should be granted 28 directing the State to release Petitioner forthwith.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF RELIEF

I

PETITIONER WAS DEPRIVED DUE PROCESS OF LAW WHEN THE STATE COURT CONCLUDED CONTRARY TO "CLEARLY ESTABLISHED" UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT PRECEDENT THAT PETITIONER HAS NO LIBERTY INTEREST IN PAROLE AND THEN DENIED PETITIONER'S CLAIM WITHOUT ANY EVIDENTIARY SUPPORT IN THE RECORD TENDING TO ESTABLISH THE BOARD OF PAROLE HEARINGS' ALLEGATION THAT THE DECISION PORTION OF THE HEARING COULD NOT BE TRANSCRIBED.

A. Petitioner has a Liberty Interest in Parole Under the Due Process Clause of the United States Constitution.

The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment prohibits state action that deprives a person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. See U.S. Const., 14th Amendment. A person alleging a due process violation must demonstrate deprivation of a constitutionally protected liberty or property interest, and a denial of adequate procedural protection. See Kentucky Dep't of Corrections v. Thompson, 490 U.S. 454, 459-460 (1989); McQuillion v. Duncan, 306 F.3d 895, 900 (9th Cir. 2002). The United States Supreme Court recognizes a federal Due Process liberty interest in parole. Greenholtz, supra, 442 U.S. at p. 7.

California's parole scheme gives rise to a cognizable liberty interest in release on parole because Penal Code section 3041 uses mandatory language that parallels the Nebraska and Montana statutes addressd in Greenholtz and Allen. "Section 3041 of the California Penal Code creates in every inmate a

1 cognizable liberty interest in parole which is protected by 2 the procedural safeguards of the Due Process Clause." See 3 Biggs v. Terhune, 334 F.3d 910, 914-915.

4 In the present case, the State court ruled that Petitioner 5 did not have a due process liberty interest in parole because 6 the parole panel's grant was a preliminary decision. (Exh.
 7 W at p. 6.) This position is contrary to the weight of authority
 8 holding otherwise. See Iron v. Carey, 479 F.3d 658, 662
 9 (9th Cir. 2007). In fact, the Ninth Circuit restated its 10 position in Sass v. California Bd. of Prison Terms, 461 F.3d 11 1123, 1127 (9th Cir. 2006) that the "liberty interest is created, 12 not upon the grant of a parole date, but upon the incarceration 13 of the inmate." Thus, the State court erroneously deprived 14 Petitioner of due process as defined by Greenholtz and Hill, infra.

15 Petitioner acknowledges "[t]here is no constitutional or 16 inherent right of a convicted person to be constitutionally 17 released before the expiration of a valid sentence." Greenholtz, 18 supra, 442 U.S. at p. 7. However, "a state's statutory scheme, 19 if it uses mandatory language, 'creates a presumption that 20 parole release will be granted' when or unless certain designated 21 findings are made, and thereby gives rise to a constitutional
 22 liberty interest." Allen, supra, 482 U.S. at pp. 377-78; 23 Greenholtz, supra, 442 U.S. at p. 12. Furthermore, when as 24 here, a prisoner has been found suitable for parole, the 25 "parole date heightens that interest." McQuillion, supra, 26 306 F.3d at p. 903. "[T]he words 'parole granted,' create[s] 27 a specific expectation." See also Rosenkrantz, 29 Cal.4th

1 at p. 657 (noting that an inmate for whom a parole date has 2 not been set possesses less of an expectation of liberty than 3 one for whom a release date has been set).

4 The state statutory provision governing parole hearings
 5 provides, in part, that "[t]he panel or the board shall set 6 a release date unless it determines that the gravity of the 7 current convicted offense or offenses ... is such that 8 consideration of public safety requires a more lengthy period
 9 of incarceration for this individual, and that a parole date, 10 therefore, cannot be fixed ..." See Penal Code § 3041, subd.
 11 (b). The Legislature's use of the words "shall" and "unless"
 12 makes the provisions mandatory, thus conferring a liberty
 13 interest in parole hearings. Allen, supra, 482 U.S. at p. 376;
 14 Greenholtz, supra, 442 U.S. at p. 11; Sass, supra, 461 F.3d
 15 at pp. 1127-118; see also In re Dannenberg, 34 Cal.4th 1061, 16 1093 (2005) (explaining that the Legislature recently added further 17 limiting factors to the statute for "the apparent purpose of 18 providing additional protection to indeterminate life inmates 19 ... who have received favorable suitability determinations").

20 Accordingly, Petitioner strongly contends, contrary to 21 the state court's opinion, it is uniformly settled that he has 22 a constitutionally protected liberty interest in release on 23 parole under the Fourteenth Amendment's due process clause.
 24 Greenholtz, 442 U.S. at 7; Allen, 482 U.S. at 373; Biggs, 334
 25 F.3d at 914; Sass, 461 F.3d; Irons, 479 F.3d 662; McQuillion, 26 306 F.3d at 898, 901-902. Thus, the state court's position 27 runs contrary to "clearly established" federal law and must 28 be rejected.

1 B. The State Court Violated the "Some Evidence" Standard
 2 and Petitioner's Right to Due Process When It Denied 3 Relief Without Any Evidentiary Support in the Record.

4 In addition, there is a federal constitutional issue going 5 to the sufficiency of the evidence governing administrative 6 hearings. In Hill, 472 U.S. 445, the Supreme Court considered
 7 the constitutional validity of such evidence. The Court held 8 the evidence before the board valid, but ruled:

9 "This standard is met if there was some evidence from 10 which the conclusion of the administrative tribunal
 11 could be deduced. Ascertaining whether this standard 12 is satisfied does not require an examination of the 13 entire record, independent assessment of the credibility 14 of the witnesses, or weighing of the evidence. In-15 stead, the relevant question is whether there is any 16 evidence in the record that could support the conclusion 17 reached by the [parole] board."

18 id. at pp. 455-456; citations and internal quotation marks 19 omitted; emphasis added. Additionally, "the evidence underlying 20 the board's decision must have some indicia of reliability."
 21 McQuillion, supra, 306 F.3d at p. 904.

22 In assessing whether or not there is "some evidence" to 23 overturn the decision of a parole panel finding an inmate 24 suitable for parole, the State Court is required to consider 25 the statutes and regulations which guide the Board in its review
 26 of the granting panel's decision. Rosenkrantz, supra, 29
 27 Cal.4th at p. 658; Dannenberg, supra, 34 Cal.4th at p. 1092;
 28 Allen, supra, 482 U.S. at pp. 377-380.

29 As material, subdivision (b) of Penal Code section 3041 30 provides:

31 "any decision of the parole panel finding an inmate
 32 suitable for parole shall become final within 120 33 days of the hearing ...unless the board finds that

1 the panel made an error of law, or that the panel's 2 decision was based on an error of fact, or that new 3 information should be presented to the board, any 4 of which when corrected or considered by the board
 5 has a substantial likelihood of resulting in a 6 substantially different decision upon rehearing."

7 Id. The pertinent Board regulations adopts this view of the 8 statute. See Cal. Code of Regs., ("CCR") tit. 15, § 2042.

9 In the case at bar, the Board based its 2004 determination 10 of disapproving the panel's finding of suitability "apparently"
 11 on an alleged "malfunction of the recording equipment." Exh(s) 12 C & D. Consequently, the Board also concluded that "the 13 decision portion of the hearing cannot be transcribed." Ibid.
 14 To support its position the Board cite to Penal Code section 15 3041(b) and CCR 2042, supra, for the proposition that "an error 16 of law is a basis for disapproving a decision." Exh. K at p.
 17 6, lns 20-25.

18 Interestingly enough, in spite of making a factual finding 19 that "[n]o mandate is set forth requiring a rehearing where, 20 as here, the recording equipment malfunctions or staff simply 21 neglects to produce all tapes for transcription" (Exh. N at 22 p. 2, lns 12-14), as well as, the acknowledgment of unresolved 23 evidentiary issues,^{4/} the State Court made no inquiry into 24 whether there was "some evidence" from which the conclusion 25 of the Board could be deduced as required by Hill. Nor did the State Court make any other inquiry or seek to resolve questions of reliability of the evidence underlying the Board's

26 4. "Given the fact that the transcript contains approximately eighty 27 pages of testimony, the court remains interested in Respondent's position 28 as to why a de novo hearing (one which appears to have reached a different conclusion) was necessary[.]" Exh J.

1 claim of malfunctioning recording equipment and its proclaimed 2 inability to transcribe the decision portion of the hearing, as 3 separately required by McQuillion.^{5/} Exh. J.

4 On this record it is hard to conceive that any member of 5 the Board reviewed the recording equipment to determine whether 6 or not the device operated properly. Particularly, where as 7 here, no declarations or any other documentary evidence has been 8 submitted to the State Court in support of the claim.^{6/} To the 9 contrary, Petitioner has shown at several points in the September 10 2004, hearing transcripts that Deputy Commissioner Rolando Mejia 11 recorded two tape(s) via his statements that: "We're now on 12 the record." BT at p. 1, lns 1-2. At the end of side A of 13 the first tape the Commissioner noted "Okay, we're now on side 14 B of this hearing." BT at p. 43, lns 26-27. Once side B was 15 completed, Commissioner Mejia advised "Okay, we've got to go 16 to another tape." BT at p. 84, lns 3-4. The second tape was 17 then asserted into the recording device and the hearing was 18 continued until its completion. See (Pet. Decl(4)).

19
 20 5. Nowhere in the transcriber's declaration does she indicate a problem 21 with transcribing tape(s) or being conferred with concerning the tran-
 22 scription of any tape(s). (BT at p. 85) However, after completely 23 transcribing the tape that contained 84 pages of testimony she noted that 24 "no further tapes were received for transcription." Id. at p. 84.

25 6. In the declaration of Daniel Moeller, then counsel for the Board, 26 he declares that he reviewed the proposed decision and signed the 27 recommendation on behalf of the Decision Review Unit. He further noted that 28 "[w]hen as [here], a significant portion of the transcript is unable to be transcribed, the hearing is not in accordance with the law." He however, omits any knowledge of who or how it was determined that the decision portion of the transcript was unable to be transcribed, or that the recording equipment malfunctioned. (Exh. K [Decl. of Moeller, attached thereto].)
 "The only existing written documents relating to Petitioner's 2004, parole suitability hearing" submitted to the State Court were the "BPT-1001 Face Sheet, miscellaneous Decision dated December 20, 2004, and the BPT-1005
 Proposed Decision." Exh. W at p. 4, lns 18-21.

1 Moreover, it has long been recognized that parole release
 2 is an "equity-type judgment" (Greenholtz, 442 U.S. at 8; Allen, 3 482 U.S. at 357) and that when exercising its discretion, the 4 Board's decision must not be "otherwise arbitrary." Hill, supra, 5 472 U.S. at p. 457; Irons, supra, 479 F.3d at p. 662. Thus, 6 in allowing the Board to justify its actions simply by reciting 7 supposed facts corresponding to the specified factors without 8 determining whether "some evidence" existed to support "cause", 9 the State Court's ruling was not only contrary to "Clearly 10 Established" law as defined by Greenholtz, Allen, and the 11 evidentiary standard articulated by Hill, but also, the State 12 Court deprived Petitioner of due process with respect to 13 affirming a Board decision that was otherwise arbitrary.

14 Accordingly, the California Supreme Court has ruled that 15 a decision like the one at issue here, is "arbitrary and 16 capricious and, because it affect[s] a protected liberty 17 interest, violate[s] established principles of due process of 18 law." Rosenkrantz, supra, 29 Cal.4th at p. 665. Likewise, 19 the Ninth Circuit has also held that such a decision "violate[s]
 20 clearly established federal law because it [allows] a state
 21 [to] interfere with a liberty interest in parole without support 22 or in an arbitrary manner." Sass, supra, 461 F.3d at pp.
 23 1128-1129. Consequently, the sole issue before this Court
 24 on the "some evidence" standard, is did the Decision Review
 25 Unit have some evidence to overturn parole. Petitioner
 26 submits the DRU's finding was not supported by "some evidence"
 27 and, as such, violated constitutional due process.^{7/}

28
 7. Hereafter the DRU is interchangeable with "Board Staff." Brief in Support of Writ of Habeas Corpus

II

1 THE STATE COURT'S ADJUDICATION RESULTED IN A DECISION 2 THAT WAS BASED ON AN UNREASONABLE DETERMINATION OF THE 3 FACTS IN LIGHT OF THE EVIDENCE PRESENTED IN THE STATE
 4 COURT PROCEEDING.

5 It is well-established that "a parole applicant's right to 6 'due consideration' cannot exist in any practical sense unless 7 there also exist a remedy against their abrogation." See In re
 8 Sturm, 11 Cal.3d 258, 268 (1974), citing Marbury v. Madison, 9 5 U.S. (Cranch) 137, 161-163, 2 L.Ed. 60 (1803). Thus, in 10 accordance with the United States Supreme Court's decision in 11 Marbury, the California Supreme Court has indicated that due 12 process requires that there be "a concomitant right to an 13 available remedy." Sturm, supra, 11 Cal.3d at pp. 268-268.

14 Furthermore, in the parole context, the state court
 15 specifically stated that "the basic remedy to correct arbitrary 16 [Board] action is the writ of habeas corpus." Sturm, supra, 11
 17 Cal.3d at p. 269; see also Rosenkrantz, supra, 29 Cal.4th at p.
 18 655.

19 Accordingly, when the Board disapproved and rescinded its 20 September 24, 2004, finding that Petitioner was suitable for 21 parole based solely on the fact that the Board lost the decision 22 portion of the transcript from the hearing, Petitioner "prosecuted 23 a writ of habeas corpus" in the state court "to inquire into the 24 cause" (In re Romero, 8 Cal.4th 728, 737 (1994), thus, 25 "provid[ing] the state courts with a 'fair opportunity' to apply 26 legal principles to the facts bearing upon his constitutional 27 claim." Anderson v. Harless, 459 U.S. 4, 6 (1982); Exh. W at 28 p. 1, lns 17-19.

1 The rules that govern the manner in which state courts must 2 exercise their authority in habeas corpus matters are set forth
3 "in sections 1473 through 1508 of the Penal Code. Romero, supra, 4 8 Cal.4th at p. 737 (holding that "in exercising this original 5 jurisdiction, the Courts ...'must abide by [these] procedures".)."

6 As material, Penal Code section 1484 provides, as pertinent,
7 that once the order to show cause has been issued and the return 8 has been filed:

9 "[t]he Court ... must ... dispose of such case as the 10 justice of the case may require, and ... to do and 11 perform all other acts and things necessary to a full and fair determination of the case."

12 Id. In In re Harris, 5 Cal.4th 813 (1993) the California Supreme 13 Court explicitly noted that section 1484 supra, is analogous to 14 28 U.S.C. § 2243 which states that "[t]he court shall summarily 15 hear and determine the facts, and dispose of the matter as law and 16 justice require." Id. at p. 851. The Supreme Court then concluded 17 that "the Penal Code thus contemplates that a court, faced with 18 a meritorious petition for writ of habeas corpus, should consider 19 factors of justice and equity when crafting an appropriate 20 remedy." Ibid; citing, Carafas v. LaVallee, 391 U.S. 234, 239 21 (1968)(emphasizing the flexible nature of federal habeas remedies 22 under applicable statutes); Andrews v. United States, 373 U.S.
23 334, 339 (1963)(same).

24 Here, after it had been determined that Petitioner stated 25 sufficient facts in both his original petition (Exh. W at 1) and 26 his amended/supplemental petition (Exh. W at 2) to establish a 27 prima facie case for relief, the State court denied relief
28

1 without requiring Respondent to file a return that "allege facts
 2 tending to establish the legality of [Petitioner's] detention 3 [or] ... disput[ing] the factual allegations contained in the 4 petition or traverse." See Bland v. California Dept. of 5 Corrections, 20 F.3d 1469, 1474 (9th Cir. 1994); Exh. W at p. 6; 6 Pet. Decl(1) at para. 8.

7 Thus, the State court's decision should not be presumed 8 correct because (a) the factual dispute was not resolved in the 9 state court (Pet. Decl(1), para's 3-6); and (b) the material 10 facts were not adequately developed. See Pet. Decl(1) para's 2, 11 8; Decl(3) para,s 1, 4, 5, 6, & 8; see also Oxborrow v. Eiken-12 berry, 877 F.2d 1395, 1399 (9th Cir. 1989) (noting that federal 13 "deference to the [state] Court is suspended only upon a finding 14 that the Court's interpretation [of state law] is untenable or 15 amounts to a subterfuge to avoid federal review of a constitut-16 ional violation.").

17 Furthermore, in denying relief, the State court specifically 18 noted that it considered the declarations of Debra Levorse and 19 Sandra Maciel and found that Respondent has shown that it would 20 be impossible to recreate the September 24, 2004 panel decision 21 granting parole based on the incomplete transcript and other 22 existing documents.^{8/} Exh. W at p. 4, lns 21-24. However, in 23 light of the fact that there is no nexus between the State

24
 25 8. The declarations of Debra Levorse and Snadra Maciel were not 26 submitted to address the re-creation of the panel's decision per section 2254 27 of the California Code of Regulations, but were submitted to address "which forms [were] made available to the commissioner's for use at Petitioner's September 2004 parole suitability hearing." (See Order, filed November 20, 2006 [Exh P] at p. 2).

1 court's conclusion and any of the statements of the declarants,
2 the court's findings "are indeed erroneous" and "lack even fair
3 support in the record." (Marshall v. Longberger, 459 U.S. 422, 432
4 (1983); Bland, supra, 20 F.3d at p. 1474. Therefore, the State 5 court's findings must be rejected.

6 A. 15 CCR § 2254 is the Means to Recreate the Missing

7 Portion of the September 2004 Hearing Transcript.

8 Section 2254 states that:

9 "A record (a verbatim transcript, tape recording or 10 written summary) shall be made of all hearings. The 11 record of the hearing shall include or incorporate 12 by reference the evidence considered, the evidence
13 relied on, and the findings of the hearing panel 14 with supporting reasons."

15 This view was adopted from the statutory provisions of 16 subdivision (b) of Penal Code 3042 which provide: "The Board of 17 [Parole Hearings] shall record all those hearings and transcribe 18 recordings of those hearings within 30 days of any hearing[,]" 19 and subdivision (c) of the statute which provides, as pertinent, 20 that "the presiding hearing officer shall state his or her 21 findings and supporting reasons on the record."

22 In its order of June 5, 2006, the State court clearly 23 pointed out Respondent's errs, and distinguished the difference 24 between the statutory right to review a parole grant and the 25 means of recording the entire hearing process. Specifically, 26 the Court concluded that Respondent erred in asserting "that 27 Sections 3041(b), 3041.1, and 3042(b)-(c)" mandates "a rehearing 28 where, as here, the recording equipment malfunctions or staff simply neglects to produce all tapes for transcriptions." Exh.

1 N at p. 2. Rather, the State court found that the "sections
 2 cited by Respondent merely provide a process for review of a 3 grant of parole."^{9/} Ibid., lns 11-13.

4 Moreover, while drawing directly from sections 2254 of the 5 Code of Regulations, the State court explained that "[a] record 6 is sufficient for review whether it be made by transcript or 7 written summary." Ibid., lns 14-15. Notably, the Court placed 8 emphasis on "incorporating by reference the evidence considered, 9 the evidence relied on, and the findings of the hearing panel 10 with supporting reasons." Ibid., lns 16-18.

11 Thus, in exercising its discretion pursuant to Penal Code 12 section 1484, the State court concluded that "the most equitable 13 solution would be to reschedule the rehearing before the same
 14 Board members with instructions to adopt the existing transcript 15 from the former hearing and recreate their Decision to recommend 16 parole based on that transcript and their independent recollect-17 ion." Ibid., lns 4-7; see also Exh(s) H at p. 2 & P at p. 1.

18 Accordingly, the means to recreate the September 04' panel's
 19 decision was always available to the Board staff through 2254, 20 but they chose not to avail themselves of this remedy and 21 instead, continued to defy the directives of the court. In fact, 22 Respondent has repeatedly failed to "analyze or discuss the 23

24 9. Penal Code section 3041(b) states that "any decision of the parole 25 panel finding an inmate suitable for parole shall become final within 120 days 26 of the date of the hearing. During that period, the board may review the panel's decision," (Dannenberg, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 1092) and 3041.1 of the 27 statute states that "the Governor shall have the power to request review of any decision concerning the grant or denial of parole. (emphasis added.)

1 equities of the matter" despite many warnings from the State
 2 court. See Exh(s) H at p. 1, lns 20-23; J at pp. 1-2; N at p.
 3 2, ln 19. Consequently, "the apparent inequity created by 4 Respondent's interpretation of the law" (Exh N at p. 2, ln 3), 5 further exacerbates the harm done to Petitioner by the Board, 6 because it resulted in the time served being in excess of even 7 the "twelve years beyond his minimum eligible parole date of 8 July 31, 1994" noted by the State court. Exh. P at p. 1, lns 9 16-17.

10 B. The Missing Portion of the September 04' Hearing

11 Recreated Pursuant to 2254 Regulatory Provisions.

12 Contrary to the Attorney General's contention that "it would 13 be impossible to recreate the September 24, 2004 Board decision
 14 granting parole" (Exh. T at p. 5, lns 16-17), the Board panel 15 did in fact utilized 2254 to recreate the decision portion of the 16 hearing.^{10/} See Exh. X. At the hearing, the Panel specifically 17 "incorporat[ed] the summary of the crime from the [existing] 18 transcript" (Id. at pp. 7 & 14; Exh. N at 2, lns 4-5; 15 CCR § 19 2254) and the documents created or relied upon by the Board, 20 including a May 25, 04' Board Report entailing parole plans 21 (Exh. X at pp. 9-10), post-conviction factors (Id. at p. 11, 22 lns 1-19), and a Psych Report prepared on April 29, 2005, by 23 Dr. Steward. Id. at pp. 11-14; CCR 2254; Exh. N at p. 2, lns 24 5-6.

25
 26 10. Petitioner is citing Exhibit-X for the limited purpose of showing 27 that section 2254 of the Code of Regulations was sufficient to recreate a record, as Ordered by the State court.

1 However, while the panel noted at the outset of the proceeding-
2 ing that it was "going to in compliance with the court order, go
3 forward with the hearing" (Exh. X at p. 6, ln 27 & p. 7, lns
4 1-2-), they clearly did not proceed in accordance with that order 5 as they conducted a de novo hearing, as is evident from the 6 admittedly different testimony from the victim (Id. at pp.
7 28-30), a new argument from a different D.A., and the following 8 exchange between counsel for Petitioner and presiding commission-9 er Susan Fisher:

10 ATTORNEY TARDIFF: I would just like to clarify 11 something. Is the transcript that's being 12 incorporated into this hearing, does that consist 13 of an 84 page transcript from September 24, 2004?

14 PRESIDING COMMISSIONER FISHER: If my understanding 15 of the court order is correct, that's what they're 16 instructing us to do. What I have specifically 17 incorporated for the purpose of this hearing is the 18 summary of the offense, and I'll leave it to our 19 legal department.

20 ATTORNEY TARDIFF: All right. We'll I just --

21 PRESIDING COMMISSIONER FISHER: What the Court is 22 ordering. It does - that's what it looks like to me.

23 ATTORNEY TARDIFF: 84 pages of a transcript from 24 September of '04?

25 PRESIDING COMMISSIONER FISHER: Yes.

26 Exh. X at p. 14, lns 10-25.^{11/}

27 11. The State court questioned the Board's failure to fully comply with 28 its original order of August 23, 2005, and in an interim order directed 29 Respondent to address "why a de novo hearing (one which appears to have 30 reached a different conclusion) was necessary to correct Respondent's failure 31 to properly record the September 24, 2004 hearing." (Exh. J at p. 1, lns 32 23-24 & p. 2, lns 1-2.)

1 Petitioner strongly contends, had the Board followed the 2 State court's original order and provided "the same [panel]
 3 members with instructions to issue a Decision recommending
 4 parole" (Exh. H at p. 2), it would have cured the due process
 5 inequity created by Respondent and made available to both 6 the public (Penal Code § 3042(b)) and the Governor (Penal Code 7 § 3041.1) for review the Panel's decision including its findings and 8 reasons supporting the decision. Penal Code § 3042(c). In 9 addition, it would have preserved Petitioner's right to "due consideration" 10 (In re Sturm, 11 Cal.3d 258, 268 (1974)), and his interest in 11 being paroled "when the findings prerequisites to release [were] 12 made." Allen, supra, 482 U.S. at p. 381; Rosenkrantz, supra, 13 29 Cal.4th at p. 654.

14 Finally, in denying relief, the State court noted that 15 "a rehearing was held and that "the same panel concluded that 16 public safety concerns required finding Petitioner unsuitable 17 for parole." Exh. W at p. 6, lns 10-12. Not only are these 18 alleged facts indeed erroneous, because nowhere in the rehearing 19 transcript does the panel expressly states that Petitioner is a 20 threat to public safety (Exh. X at pp. 31-33), but the denial 21 is in conflict with California law which dictates that "the Board 22 must apply detailed standards when evaluating whether an 23 individual inmate is unsuitable for parole on public safety
 24 grounds." Dannenberg, supra, 34 Cal.4th at 1095, fn 16.^{12/}

25
 12. The State court's denial fails to acknowledge that the hearing
 26 results were in conflict with the court order instructing the Board "to adopt 27 the existing transcript from the former hearing and recreate their decision to 28 recommend parole based on that transcript and their independent recollection"
 (Exh. H at p. 2.), as well as, contrary to the evidence indicating that Dixon was shot by "both Canado and [Petitioner]." (BT at 14:22-25; Pet. Decl(2)).

III

1 PETITIONER WAS DEPRIVED OF HIS FIFTH AND FOURTEENTH AMENDMENT
 2 RIGHTS TO DUE PROCESS WHEN THE BOARD DISAPPROVED AND RESCIND-3 ED ITS SEPTEMBER 24, 2004 FINDING THAT HE WAS SUITABLE FOR 4 PAROLE BASED SOLELY ON THE FACT THAT THE BOARD LOST THE DECISION PORTION OF THE TRANSCRIPT FROM THE HEARING.

5 As demonstrated, the mandatory language of subdivision (b)
 6 of Penal Code Section 3041 imposes an affirmative obligation to 7 grant parole, creating a legally cognizable liberty interest in 8 parole and a presumption that parole release will be granted if 9 certain conditions are met. McQuillion, 306 F.3d at pp. 901-902; 10 Biggs, 334 F.3d at p. 915. Moreover, once parole has been 11 granted, California law provides that the "decision finding an 12 inmate suitable for parole is final unless overturned by the full 13 Board within 120 days [for 'good cause']." Penal Code § 3041(b); 14 Dannenberg, 34 Cal.4th at p. 1092.

15 "Good Cause" for disapproval includes conduct enumerated in 16 section 2042 of the California Code of Regulations, which states 17 "(1) the panel made an error of law; (2) the panel's decision was 18 based on an error of fact; or (3) that new information should be 19 presented to the board, any of which when corrected or considered 20 by the board has a substantial likelihood of resulting in a 21 substantially different decision upon rehearing."^{13/} Dannenberg, 22 34 Cal.4th at 1092 (referencing amended Penal Code § 3041(b)).
 23 Furthermore, under Board statutes and regulations, the Board's 24 findings had to be based upon the law the Panel was required

25
 26 13. Black's Law Dictionary (cent. ed. 1991) most pertinently defines 27 "error of law" as "an error of the [panel] in applying the law to the case..."
Id., at p. 377, col. 2; see also Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466, 492
 fn. 17 (2002), citing approvingly to "most common definitions" of Black's Law Dictionary.

1 to use in finding Petitioner suitable for parole. Rosenkrantz, 2 29 Cal.4th at pp. 654-655; 15 CCR §§ 280, 2281(a)-(d), 2282(c).

3 A. The September 2004 Hearing Panel's Decision.

4 The 2004 Panel reached its finding of suitability for parole
 5 after an approximately three-hour hearing. At the hearing the 6 Panel noted that the proceedings were being conducted pursuant to 7 Penal Code Sections 3041 and 3042 and the Rules and Regulations
 8 of the Board of [Parole Hearings] governing parole consideration
 9 hearings for life inmates. BT at p. 5. The Panel then addressed 10 the particulars of the governing criteria and guidelines, noting that:

11 "the purpose of the hearing today is to consider again the crimes 12 that you were committed for, your prior criminal and social 13 history, and your behavior and programming since your commitment 14 offense. We have had the opportunity to review your files and 15 your prior transcripts, and we'll give you the opportunity to 16 make any corrections that you need to today, all right. [¶]We're 17 going to be deciding today as to your suitability. If we do 18 find you suitable today we'll explain to you also today what the 19 length of your confinement will be. [¶]Prior to recessing to 20 deliberate we're going to give the District Attorney and your 21 attorney and you the opportunity to make a statement about your suitability. And then once you've done that we'll allow Mr.
 Dixon to make his statement. After that is completed we will have everyone leave the room. We'll turn off the camera here and we'll deliberate. As soon as we have a decision we'll bring you all back in, okay. [¶]The California Code of Regulations state that regardless of the time served a life inmate shall be found unsuitable for and denied parole if in the judgment of the Panel the inmate would pose an unreasonable risk of danger to society if released."

22 Id. at pp. 5-6. The Panel then discussed with Petitioner his 23 entitlement to "a timely notice of the hearing, the right to 24 review [his] central file, the right to present relevant

25 documents, [and] the right to an impartial panel." Id. at pp.

26 6-7. Prior to explaining the appeals process, the Panel stated

27 "we're going to give you a written copy today of our tentative

1 decision," and further advised that the decision will become final 2 within 120 days. In addition, the Panel conveyed to Petitioner
 3 that "a copy of the decision and transcript will be sent to you."
 4 BT at p. 7. Thus, the granting Panel explicitly stated what it 5 intended to discuss, and a review of the transcript provides 6 undisputed proof of what it had discussed. At the conclusion of 7 the hearing, the Panel found Petitioner suitable for parole and 8 no longer posing an unreasonable risk or danger to public safety.
 9 The Panel used its regulatory matrix (15 CCR 2282(c)) for setting 10 the based term at 180 months (15 yrs) and calculated the total
 11 period of confinement at 188 months (15 yrs, 8 mos). Petitioner
 12 was then given a copy of the proposed Decision with the affixation
 13 "PAROLE GRANTED do not release pending decision review" printed 14 thereupon. See Exh. A; Pet. Decl(4) at para(s) 3, 4, 6 & 7.

15 In Rosenkrantz, the California Supreme Court reaffirmed its 16 position that the statutes and regulations cited by the Panel are 17 indeed the law governing parole board decisions, and that once 18 the Board has "take[n] into account all pertinent information and 19 input about a particular case" and determined based upon the 20 "detailed standards" that the inmate no longer poses a threat to 21 public safety, "the Board must grant parole." 29 Cal.4th at "pp.
 22 653-54; Dannenberg, 34 Cal.4th at 1078-80, 1098; Allen, 482 U.S. at 377-78.

23 Accordingly, the relevant question here, is whether there is 24 any evidence to substantiate the Board's ultimate inference that 25 the Panel made an error of law, and if so, did "the authority
 26 make it clear that it would have reached the same decision absent 27 the error." See Dannenberg, supra, 34 Cal.4th at p. 682 (holding 28

1 that "[a] reviewing court may uphold a parole authority's 2 decision, despite a flaw in its findings, if the authority has 3 made it clear it would have reached the same decision even 4 absent the error"); Rosenkrantz, supra, 29 Cal.4th at p. 682
 5 ("same"). The record in this case simply will not permit such 6 a conclusion. See Pet. Decl(4) at para 3.

7 Conversely, on this record, the "error of law" basis for 8 good cause on which the Decision Review Unit ("DRU") and the 9 En Banc Board purported to have acted, irrefutably reflects 10 in actual fact, that the "[disapproval and] rescission was an 11 abuse of discretion" (In re Powell, 45 Cal.3d 894, 904 (1988))
 12 because neither the DRU or the Board operated within the limiting 13 construction of the law, nor avail themselves of mandated 14 available remedies, and both "acted 'without information [and] 15 on mere personal caprice.'" Powell, supra, 45 Cal.3d at p. 904, 16 quoting In re Spence, 36 Cal.App.3d 636, 639-640 (1974).

17 B. The Board Staff's Review of the September 04'

18 Hearing Transcript and Finding of Suitability.

19 When "reviewing" a decision rendered at a parole board 20 hearing, the law dictated that "the board staff shall review the 21 information available to the panel that made the decision"
 22 (15 CCR § 2042) and must also "consult with the commissioners 23 who conducted the parole consideration hearing." Dannenberg, 24 supra, 34 Cal.4th at p. 1092; Penal Code § 3041(b). Moreover, 25 due process of law requires the Board's staff to observe the 26 statutory procedural "safeguards" which protects "against serious 27 risk of errors." Greenholtz, supra, 442 U.S. at p. 15.

1 However, instead of fulfilling its duty of reviewing the 2 information made available to the September 04' hearing Panel 3 members that made the decision, the Board staff overturned the 4 Panel's finding of suitability based on piecemeal information and 5 without ever conferring with the Panel to determine what happen
 6 to the second tape. BT at p. 84; Exh(s) C & D.

7 Petitioner strongly contends, after alleging a problem
 8 concerning the recording equipment and tapes, the board staff
 9 had a responsibility to consult not only with the commissioners 10 who presided over the case,^{14/} but also other staff members to 11 establish the chain of custody regarding the missing tape.
 12 Particularly, since the tape in question contains "a synthesis 13 of record facts"^{15/} that the Panel personally observed and 14 filtered through its experience leading to its decision to 15 grant parole. Greenholtz, supra, 442 U.S. at p. 8; Allen, 482
 16 U.S. at p. 375.

17 Moreover, had the Board staff acted with due diligence and 18 consulted with the commissioners and other personnel handling 19 the records in this case,^{16/} the information complained of could 20 have been recovered, and/or in lieu of its recovery, the 21 "decision portion" of the hearing was certainly obtainable
 22 through consultation given that (1) the transcript was completed 23

24 14. Susan Fisher (Presiding) and Rolando Mejia (Deputy).

25 15. Closing statements of Petitioner and his attorney, the victim and the 26 deputy district attorney.

27 16. Including Sandra Maciel (Staff Service Manger I, BPH-Decision Processing
 28 and Scheduling Unit); Debra Levorse (Classification and Parole Representative Records Department); and Patricia Ricci (Transcriber of the hearing tape(s) which totaled one in number "Oct. 15, 2004").

1 approximately twenty-one days after the hearing,^{17/} thus making 2 it possible to document its findings with supporting reasons;
 3 and (2) the Board staff had before it the evidence considered 4 and relied on by the panel in the form of an 84 page 5 transcript.^{18/}

6 Noteworthy, under both state and federal law, the Board's 7 reasons, in and of themselves, violates due process because they 8 fail to strike "a balance between the interest of [Petitioner]
 9 and of the public" (Powell, supra, 48 Cal.3d at 902), and also runs 10 contrary to "a predictive judgment as to what is best for both 11 [Petitioner] and for the community." Greenholzt, supra, 442 U.S.
 12 at 8; Allen, supra, 482 U.S. at p. 357.

13 As is evident by the record, the Board's decision to 14 overturn the Panel's finding of suitability based solely on the 15 fact that the Board's staff lost the decision portion of the 16 transcript from the hearing contravened the due process clause
 17 because it had nothing to do with public safety or any other 18 statutory criteria for denying parole. In Allen, the Supreme 19 Court made it clear that once the statutory requirements for 20 parole have been met, "the Board shall release the inmate."
 21 482 U.S. at p. 381. Here, Petitioner overcame the legislative 22

23 17. While "the demeanor of witnesses and their manner of testifying" 24 (In re Hitchings, 6 Cal.4th 97, 109 (1993)) was still relatively fresh in the 25 minds of the commissioners. see also Greenholzt, supra, 442 U.S. at p. 8 26 (referring to the decisionmaker's personal observation filtered through his or 27 her experience.).

28 18. Other evidence before the Board staff were: original letters from 29 victims (BT at 8), the 2002 Board Report (Id. at 10), the 2003 Psych Report 30 (Id. at 42), Petitioner's parole plans (Id. at 27), letters of support for 31 Petitioner (Id. at 29), the Central-file (Id. at 35), Petitioner's 32 disciplinary history (Id. at 41); and the Appellate Court Opinion. Id. at 53.

1 expressed public safety exception of Penal Code section 3042, 2 subdivision (b) when the granting Panel found him suitable for 3 parole, and there "is nothing in the record" suggesting that he 4 had engaged in any conduct reflecting adversely upon his parole 5 grant.

6 Accordingly, Petitioner strongly contends, that even in 7 applying permissible standards, the Board "cannot [deny parole]
8 when [as here,] there is no basis for their finding[s]." See 9 Rosenkrantz, supra, 29 Cal.4th at p. 667, quoting Schware v.
10 Board of Examiners, 353 U.S. 232, 239 (1957); see also Hill, 11 472 U.S. at p. 457; Irons, supra, 479 F.3d at p. 662. Moreover, 12 it has been noted that when no rational connection has been made 13 between the Board's decision and the applicable criteria, the 14 decision has been held to be "arbitrary and capricious, thereby 15 depriving the prisoner of due process of law." Rosenkrantz, 16 supra, 29 Cal.4th at p. 657, citing Powell, supra, 45 Cal.3d at 17 p. 904; Sass, supra, 461 F.3d at p. 1129.

CONCLUSION

"The touchstone of due process is protection of the individual against arbitrary action of government." Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539, 558 (1974), citing Dent v. West Virginia, 129 U.S. 114 (1889). The Board's failure to point to any evidence in the record that would support the Decision Review Unit's conclusion, and ultimately the disapproval and rescission of Petitioner's parole grant "infringed on [Petitioner's] cognizable liberty interest that has been 'clearly established' by the United States Supreme Court" (Board of Pardons v. Dumchat, 452 U.S. 458, 467 (1981); Greenholtz, supra, 442 U.S. at 12; Allen, 482 U.S. at 377; Sass, supra, 461 F.3d at 1129) and violated his constitutional right to due process.

14 Accordingly, the State Court's decision was contrary to 15 "clearly established" law and was unreasonable in light of the 16 evidence presented in the state court proceeding. 28 U.S.C.
17 § 2254; Early v. Packer, 537 U.S. 3, 8 (2002) (quoting Williams 18 v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 412-413 (2000)). Petitioner therefore, 19 request this Court to grant the petition for writ of habeas
20 corpus and Order Respondent to release him forthwith. 19/
